

Ylan Mui

Managing Director
Penta Group

Ylan Mui is a managing director at Penta Group, where she specializes in public affairs and crisis communications for financial services clients. Before joining Penta, she spent more than two decades as a journalist at top-tier news organizations. She was a senior correspondent at CNBC based in Washington and spent 14 years at The Washington Post, including as White House economic policy reporter. Her coverage spanned the Trump and Biden administrations, the Federal Reserve, the Great Recession and the 2008 global financial crisis. She also served as a weekend host of C-SPAN's public affairs call-in show, Washington Journal.

Ylan has interviewed leading policymakers, such as former Federal Reserve Chair Ben Bernanke, former Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen, and former House Speaker Paul Ryan. She has reported from London, Athens, Italy, Brazil and Vietnam but began her career writing obituaries and answering phones at The Times-Picayune in New Orleans. She is a graduate of Loyola University, New Orleans.

