

Javier David

Business Editor
Dallas Morning News

Javier is the Business Editor for the Dallas Morning News, where he oversees a 15 person team of journalists who cover energy, health care, and the regional economy — including real estate, investing, transportation, aviation and the business of sports.

Over his 25+ years in financial media, Javier has covered macroeconomics, the Federal Reserve, foreign exchange, capital markets, the global economy, technology, corporate governance, politics and policy. His career has included progressively responsible positions at Reuters, Dow Jones/The Wall Street Journal, CNBC, Yahoo Finance and Axios. In his past lives, Javier enlisted in the US Army and served in post-Cold War Germany, and started his post-college career on Wall Street. He holds a Bachelor's in Economics and Political Science from Long Island University and a Masters in Public Administration from Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs.

A D-FW transplant by way of Brooklyn, Javier speaks fluent Spanish, limited French, and can order chicken and French fries in German; sadly, as a die-hard Star Trek fan, he never learned Klingon.
