

Jeb Hensarling

Strategic Advisor and Member of the Listing Standards and Governance Advisory Council
Texas Stock Exchange

Jeb is a renowned economic policy expert who served in the U.S. Congress for eight terms representing the 5th District of Texas, including three terms as Chairman of the House Financial Services Committee. As Chairman, Jeb shepherded more than 80 bills into law, including the Economic Growth, Regulatory Relief and Consumer Protection Act, widely recognized as the most important pro-growth banking bill in a generation, as well as the JOBS 2.0 legislation, which helps startups and early growth companies access capital.

During his congressional career, Jeb was chosen to serve in other key leadership positions, including Conference Chairman and Co-Chairman of the Joint Select Committee on Deficit Reduction.

Additionally, he served on the Congressional Oversight Panel for TARP, the $700 billion troubled asset purchase program set up in the wake of the 2008 financial crisis. Most recently, Jeb served as managing director and executive vice chairman of UBS Americas. Jeb earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Texas A&M University and a JD from the University of Texas.
